John W. Martin, (died 1860), 32 years old, William Franklin, (1834-1869); twin daughters of William and Louise Franklin, born and died the same day but interred Sept. 6, 1864; Thomas Ricker (died in 1865), David Crum (died in 1867), William D. Sperry (1866-1868) and Annie E. Harris (1874-1875).

In 1860, John W. Martin, who was 32 years old at the time of his death, was buried in the cemetery, which was at various times identified in records as the Freeport Cemetery and the West Union Cemetery. It was also recorded that the Franklin family had sufficient burials at the site to lead to the parcel being unofficially referred to at times as the "Franklin family cemetery." Members of that family to be interred in those grounds included William Franklin (1834-1869), who was born in Denmark and came to the Freeport area in 1857. Another record of the cemetery indicates that the twin daughters of William and Louise Franklin were interred at the site on Sept. 6, 1864. The infants died only six hours after they were born.
